

B. A. Part - I, Semester - I
Introduction of Sociology (Subject Code – 1024)

CO 1 : This course introduces the origin of sociology and the scientific nature of sociology.

CO 2 : This course is explain which elements should be studied in sociology and how sociology is related to other social sciences.

CO 3 : This course is guide to how to use the perspective while studying sociology.

CO 4 : Identification of basic concepts in sociology e.g. society and community.

CO 5 : The importance and classification of various social groups in the life of individual and society

CO 6 : Students will understanding the formation of each social structure and the elements required for it.

CO 7 : The factors that determine the status and role of the individual in the society are introduced here.

CO 8 : The importance of social organization in individual and social life and their types will be informed through this course.

CO 9 : This course explains the meaning and importance of social values and social norms in the society.

CO 10 : The need for social control in individual life and social life and the changing factors of social control over time have been shown.

CO 11 : This course explains the causes of conformity & social deviation and their side effects.

B. A. Part - I, Semester - II
Introduction of Sociology (Subject Code – 1024)

CO 1 : This course introduces students to the elements that connect individuals and society.

CO 2 : This course works is emphasize the importance of culture in individual life and social life.

CO 3 : This course introduces the importance of the process of socialization and various agencies of socialization.

CO 4 : The course serves to emphasize the importance of family organization while fulfil the needs of individual and society.

CO 5 : This course introduces how marriage was important for fulfil the physical needs and how the nature of marriage is changing in modern times.

CO 6 : The role of religion in maintaining peace of mind and social control is explained through this course.

CO 7 : Here it is explained how the political system works and his role for society.

CO 8 : This course explains the need for social movements, its background and the planning and types of social movements.

CO 9 : The course introduces the status of social stratification in different societies and its types and bases.

CO 10 : As social change is an inevitable law of creation, this course provides information on which factors are responsible for it and which factors hinder social change.

B. A. Part - II, Semester - III

Social Problems in India (Subject Code – 1024)

CO 1 : This course explains the meaning and scope of social problems from a scientific point of view.

CO 1 : Disorganization, Anomie and Value conflict approaches to the study of social problems are introduced here.

CO 3 : This course explains the causality and side effects of dowry and divorce issues related to women.

CO 4 : The various forms of domestic violence against women in Indian society are described here.

CO 5 : The causes, side effects and scientific remedies for population growth in India are explained in this course.

CO 6 : The process of rural-urban migration in India and its consequences are described here.

CO 7 : The nature of unemployment in rural areas and its solutions are suggested in this course.

CO 8 : This course explains the causation of increasing farmer suicides in rural areas and its impact on family and society.

CO 9 : The causality of the growing problem of alcoholism in the society and its adverse effects on the family will be identified in this course.

CO 10 : The causes of increasing drug use among the youth, its side effects and remedies are suggested through this course.

B. A. Part - II, Semester - IV

Social Problems in India (Subject Code – 1024)

CO 1 : This course provides an overview of the nature of the problem of corruption in India and its participants.

CO 2 : Measures to curb corruption are explained here through this course.

CO 3 : The history of terrorism in India, its causes, types and its adverse effects on the society are explained in this course.

CO 4 : It will help in understanding the nature of White Collar crime and its adverse effects on the society.

CO 5 : The problems of Scheduled Castes as a weaker section in India and its effects will be explained through this course.

CO 6 : The causation of the problems of the tribals in India and the Constitutional provisions on them are reviewed here.

CO 7 : The course will provide information on the increasing number of slums due to urbanization in India, its adverse effects and measures for the eradication of slums.

CO 8 : Information on the nature of crime in the Urban society and the criminal correction program will be explain in this course.

CO 9 : The course will provide information about the rising juvenile delinquency in the city, its causes and juvenile detention centres.

CO 10 : Information on the causes of caste and religious discrimination in India and its adverse effects can be found here.

CO 11 : The nature of religious intolerance in India, the consequences of religious riots and cultural and ethnic conflicts will be explain in this course.

CO 12 : The course will provide information on the causes and effects of violence and crime against women and minorities.

B. A. Part –III, Semester - V

Social anthropology (Subject Code – 1024)

CO 1 : This course will explain the meaning of social anthropology and the importance of social anthropology in the study of tribal communities.

CO 2 : It will help in understanding the meaning and characteristics of the tribal community.

CO 3 : The importance of the study of tribal communities in the Indian context will be clear here.

CO 4 : This course will explain the correlation between social anthropology and other social sciences.

CO 5 : This course will provide scientific information on how to use the study methods in social anthropology while studying tribal communities.

CO 6 : The historical background of the study of tribal communities in India and the contribution of social anthropologists will be introduced.

CO 7 : It will be an introduction to the areas in India where the tribals live and what problems have arisen due to their geographical isolation.

CO 8 : Students will find information about the ethnic and linguistic classification of Indian tribes.

CO 9 : It will help in understanding the concept of religion and the theories of origin of religion in the tribal community.

CO 10 : The type of magic and the role of Shaman in the tribal community will be explained through this course.

CO 11 : The work of the priest who performs religious activities and the religious beliefs and rituals of the tribals will be introduced here.

CO 12 : This course will explain the nature of tribal economy and the history of tribal economy.

B. A. Part –III, Semester - VI

Social anthropology (Subject Code – 1024)

CO 1 : This course will introduce us to the social life of the tribals.

CO 2 : The types and purposes of marriage in tribal communities are explained in this course

CO 3 : This course explains the theory of family origin, the types and functions of family in tribal communities.

CO 4 : Student will understand the concept of clan and its function in tribal community.

CO 5 : Students will find information about the concept of Totemism in the tribal community, types of Totem and importance of Totem.

CO 6 : The importance of Dormitory system in tribal life and its changes are explained in this course.

CO 7 : Students will look at the root causes of poverty and indebtedness facing tribal people and its adverse effects.

CO 8 : Information on tribal land rights and current status of agricultural issues will be provided in this course

CO 9 : The problem of illiteracy in the tribal community and the correlation between illiteracy and exploitation will be clared.

CO 10 : Guidance will be given here on what policies should be used for the development of tribal communities and their problems.

CO 11 : Students will understand the constitutional provisions for tribal development.

CO 12 : Obstacles to tribal development and measures to overcome them are suggested in this course.